ISO MANAGEMENT SYSTEMS

Overview

With the rising competition between businesses, alongside the utilization of innovative manufacturing possibilities, it has become a global norm to adopt products and services to standards. Standardization has become a prerequisite in sizing corporate identity within the market. ISO International Standards were formulated to ensure that products and services are safe, reliable and of good quality. For business, they are strategic tools that reduce costs by minimizing waste and errors, and increasing productivity. They help companies to access new markets, level the playing field for developing countries and facilitate free and fair global trade.

Some of ISO's most well-known standards are management system standards. They provide a model to follow when setting up and operating a management system. Like all ISO standards, they are the result of international, expert consensus. Therefore, by implementing a management system standard, organizations can benefit from global management experience and good practice. A management system describes the set of procedures an organization needs to follow in order to meet its objectives. The program has been formulated to include the full spectrum of ISO management systems.

Upon completion of the training program, delegates will benefit respective institutions/companies with the following benefits:

Cost reductions- Adopting these standards optimize operations within institutions/businesses and thereby reduce costs.

Greater market share- Aligning company protocols and manufacturing schemes with these standards enhances productivity and gains the company a competitive edge. The adoption of these internationally accepted standards ensures their credibility on a global scale.

Improve stakeholder & customer satisfaction- Employing these standards ensures that the services/products are value for money and a reliable investment for organizations.

Applicability- Universally applicable standards that can be utilized in devising customized models tailored to respective production lines and various services.

This program is designed to equip company representatives with a comprehensive theoretical background and practical experience with regards to ISO Management Systems. SAHARA Group has collaborative associations with accreditation and certification bodies. Specialized consultation and pertinent referrals can be made for those who wish to pursue further specialization within the spectrum of auditing/certification.
